INTRODUCTION:

River, the free gift of nature is the mother of all living beings. The culture of human beings are developed in the bank of rivers. The earliest civilizations which is identified as river culture is formed on fertile river plains.

River constitute identities and creates societies in many different ways, as symbol and as a primary agency in culture. From a water perspective, the river may transcend or divide states, enabling other identities since political boundaries may not correspond to the cultural units. These identities have their point of departure in the very physicality of the different forms of water and the biological necessity of the daily water.

The riverine culture is closely associated with people's education which will make a rich civilization for people living in the neighbouring region. In ancient time rivers were the main source of drinking water and other day to day activities. The river gives the inhabitants a reliable source of water for drinking and agriculture. The River, itself a unique network that gathers a multitude of organizations engaged in the regeneration of riverbanks and waterfronts as cultural spaces. The River brings together the arts and culture sector with environmental and research organizations, policy-makers, city planners and decision makers, to provide sustainable public spaces for civic engagement on our rivers and waterfronts.
